Community stunned by policeman's death

The Huntingdon community was stunned to learn of the sudden death of officer Arthur Authier on Sunday, March 11 around twelve noon.

Officer Authier, 41 a member of the local detachment of the Sûreté du Québec, apparently died of a heart attack, after experiencing health problems a few days only.

The funeral for officer Authier will take place today Wednesday, March 14 at 10:30 a.m. in St. Joseph's Church, Huntingdon.

Arthur Authier was stationed with the Huntingdon QPP since July 1966. His work as a policeman went from road patrol to criminal investigations and specially, recently, to crime prevention in the schools where he was always well received by the young people.

The loss of Arthur Authier will be strongly felt in Huntingdon as he was an individual who liked to get involved in the community. He showed his devotion by being responsible for many years of a group of English-speaking scouts in Huntingdon. He was also a member of the Huntingdon Hospital board of directors and church-warden for St. Joseph's Parish.

Officer Authier leaves to mourn: his wife Margaret, née Cosgrove, and his two sons, Mark, 15, and Richard, 12. His colleagues at work and a host of friends will also greatly miss him.

Fatal crash

Armand Vaillancourt, aged 24, of Lorne street in Huntingdon, lost his life in a traffic accident involving only one vehicle on Sunday, March 11 at 4:45 a.m.

Vaillancourt was alone in his 1979 Chrysler on Godmanchester's Ridge Road, as his car apparently skidded and hit a tree stump and a cord of wood, flipping over.

The victim was trapped in his car and, after receiving help, was taken by ambulance to Huntingdon Hospital where he died on arrival.

Dr. Georges Lefebvre, acting as coroner, started a routine investigation into the circumstances of the accident but everything leads to believe that the verdict will be one of accidental death.

Vaillancourt's car, badly damaged, was declared a total loss.
