Olive and family

George L. Collum, 88, passed away quietly

He died as he lived - quietly and unobtrusively - on November 1, 1984 at the Centre d'Accueil, Ormstown. George had been in failing health for the past year but never lost his sense of humour nor his concern for the well-being of others around him.

George was born at Ormstown on December 2, 1895, the son of Charles Collum and Brigitte Murphy. He married Beatrice Fallon who predeceased him in 1979. They had no children.

He is survived by a sister-in-law, Mrs. Mabel Collum, of Syracuse, N.Y., widow of his only brother, Bernard. In addition there are many nieces and nephews on the Fallon side, as well as a host of friends.

In his younger days, George was a progressive farmer on the Riviere Outarde. After selling the farm he moved to Huntingdon where he sold insurance for a number of years. During that time, he served his community as alderman and his church in many capacities. He loved to curl and spent many winters travelling throughout the area to numerous bonspiels. In more recent years he was an active member of the Arts and Crafts Centre in Huntingdon where he delighted everyone with his many stories and poems.

The funeral mass was celebrated at St. Joseph's Church, Huntingdon, by Father Elie Charlebois, parish priest of St. Antoine Abbe and Chaplain of the Centre d'accueil, Ormstown. In his eulogy Father Charlebois reflected upon his perpetual good humour, how this permeated through the Centre d'accueil and beyond and how everyone felt just a little better for having come in contact with George.

Burial was in the family plot in St. Joseph's Cemetery. Pallbearers were James McCaffrey, Ovide Monique, Robert Whyte, Clarence Platt, Paul Bouchard and Douglas Burns. Peace, George.

Former Constable man killed in Germany

John R. Mongeon, 21, formerly of Constable, was killed in an automobile accident in Hanau, Germany, Sunday, October 21, 1984.

Born in Huntingdon, Quebec, December 14, 1962, he was the son of Leopold and Pearl Tulant Mongeon.

John was a graduate of Franklin Academy. On June 30, 1984, he married the former Angela Charland in Brushton. She survives.

After serving in the Army Reserves for the past three-and-a-half years, he enlisted in the Regular Army last February. Since last July, he was stationed in Hanau where he was a PV-2 in the 689th Maintenance Co.

Besides his wife, of North Bangor and his parents, of Constable, surviving are his father-in-law, Ronald Charland of Port Henry; his mother-in-law, Gloria Charland of North Bangor; a son, Lance, at home; three brothers, Richard of Malone, Daniel of Constable and Mario, also of Malone; three sisters, Lise Mongeon of Huntingdon, Sylvia Mongeon of Dorval, Quebec, and Paula Mongeon of South Carolina, and several nieces and nephews.

John was predeceased by a brother, Kevin.

Funeral services were held October 27th at St. Francis of Assisi Church, Constable. Burial was in St. Bridget's Cemetery, Trout River.

John McCaig judged cattle around the world

Some sad news came with the report of this year's Royal - the sudden death of John McCaig who has been involved with cattle breeding around the world.

He died of a heart attack after returning to his Ottawa office from a visit to the Royal Winter Fair in Toronto. Just a week before the 61-year-old Ormstown native had been in Kenya.

Donald McCaig recalls his brother's start in an agricultural career when John graduated from Macdonald College in 1944 and took a job with the Federal Department of Agriculture as the head of the 4-H Club in southwest Quebec and the Eastern Townships.

He then accepted a position with the Advanced Registry Board as Chief Inspector for Canada, grading bulls of all breeds except Holstein.

After that, he began classifying all other breeds (Ayrshire, Guernsey, Jersey, and Brown Swiss), a job he held until about 9 years ago. At that point, he accepted the post of Executive Treasurer of the Ayrshire Breeders Association of Canada where he also served as editor of the Ayrshire Review. Last year he was appointed Secretary of the World Ayrshire Breeders Association.

Never a breeder himself, John McCaig judged cattle at major exhibitions in Norway, Sweden, Scotland, England, the United States and Canada.
