In Memory of Wayne Ykema

"Please God, I'm only 17,

The day I died was an ordinary work day. How I wish I had not gone out. But I was too cool... to stay home. I ran to the driveway, excited at the thought of driving a new car, and being the boss. Free! It doesn't matter how the accident happened; I was enjoying my freedom and having fun. The last thing I remember: I hit the ditch and heard a deafening crash, and felt a troubled jolt. Glass and steel flew everywhere. My old body seemed to be inside out. I heard myself scream.

Suddenly, I was awakened, I was very quiet. A police officer was standing over me, then I saw a doctor. My body was numb. I was saturated with blood. Pieces of jagged glass were all over me. Strange that I could not feel anything. Hey! Don't pull that sheet over my head, I can't be dead. I'm only 17, I have a party. I am supposed to grow up and have a wonderful life. I haven't lived yet. I can't be dead.

Later I was placed in a drawer. My family had to identify me. Why did they have to see me like this? Why did I have to look at my loved ones' eyes, when they faced the most horrible ordeal of their lives? Everyone looked so different. They told the man in charge, "Yes, that is him."

The funeral was a weird experience. I saw all my relatives and friends walk toward the casket. They passed, one by one, and looked at me with the saddest eyes. Some of my buddies were crying. A few of the girls touched my hand and sobbed as they walked away.

Please someone wake me up. Get me out of here. I can't bear to see my loved ones so broken up and so racked with grief, they can barely walk. They're all like zombies. They move like robots in a daze. Everybody! No one can believe this and I can't believe it either. Please don't bury me! I'm not dead. I have a lot of living to do. I want to laugh and run again. I want to work and have fun. I want to live!

Please don't put me in the ground. I promise if you give me just one more chance, I'll be the most careful driver in the world. All I want is one more chance. Please, I'm only 17."

"We love you and you will live forever in our hearts. Love, Carol, Sondra and Linda."
