Wallace Douglas 1906-1989

For 70 of his 83 years Wallace Douglas, a native of the Chateaugay Valley, lived on the farm property now owned by Russel Forget on Highway 138 in Godmanchester. He and his father before him and for a short time his son Allen ran a dairy operation. When Allen took over the farm, Wallace set up a trailer home on the property and continued to live there after the sale of the farm to Forget.

Wallace was a good farmer and was extremely industrious. He continued to help his son Allen when he re-established a dairy operation in Burke, N.Y. For many years he cut ice on the Chateaugay River on the off-season. A good carpenter and handyman, he spent countless hours helping neighbours and relatives on many of their projects, right up to the past year when a series of medical problems slowed him down.

Wallace was an avid railway buff. Although he never realized his lifelong dream of becoming a rail-roader, he spent many hours contentedly watching the trains passing through town or reading about engines and the numerous railway lines that criss-cross the continent.

Wallace Douglas was born Feb. 5, 1906 to the late Harry Douglass and his wife Ellen McCartney. On Sept. 10, 1941, he married Mildred Stark of Westville, N.Y., who survives him.

He also leaves to mourn his loss his daughter Marjorie (Mrs. Wm. Badger) of Constable, N.Y. and son Allen (Patricia Wilson) of Burke, N.Y., grandchildren Susan Robertson of Constable, N.Y., Tommy Armstrong of Westville, Heather Douglas, currently serving in the U.S. Army in Alabama and James, Kenneth and Nicole Douglas, as well as many relatives and friends. He was predeceased by a sister, Helen (Mrs. Ronald Mitchell), of Montreal.

Although he had been hospitalized for short periods of time over the past few months, Wallace was admitted to the Barrie Memorial Hospital, Ormstown, only three weeks prior to his death on June 30. The funeral, conducted by Rev. Lance Weisser, minister of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, was held July 2 from the Kelly Funeral Parlor, Huntingdon, and interment was in the Huntingdon Protestant Cemetery.

Pallbearers were Gerald Henderson, Bill MacDonald, Ronald MacDonald, Bob Armstrong, Douglass Cameron and Leon Douglass.
