Late Earle Young Templeton had distinguished career in education

Of Earle Young Templeton it could be said that his courageous cheerfulness during the last years of his life as he battled health problems was inspiring to everyone who came in contact with him. When asked, "How are you?" his answer was always, "I'm fine".

Earle was born June 11, 1921, in the ancestral Templeton home on Riverfield's Scotch Concession. He was the fourth son of Wallace Templeton and Marjory Thompson in a family of seven (James, Douglas, Donald, Betty, Murray and Jean) and was baptised by Rev. Ballantyne in Riverfield Presbyterian Church.

After attending Riverfield's one-room school, Earle went on to Howick High and then Bishop's University where he received a BSc in 1942.

After working for a year at the Cherrier plant of the Inspection Board of the United Kingdom of Canada, he began his teaching career at Granby High School. Four years later he returned to Bishop's for Education courses and taught at Lennoxville High School. The next year, he moved to St-Lambert where he spent 18 years as teacher, vice-principal, principal and supervisor of education.

First CVR principal

His career in education then brought him to Ormstown in 1967 as the first principal of Chateauguay Valley Regional High School. He returned to teaching at the end of his career, retiring in June 1978 after 35 years. Earle received the Second Degree Award for great Merit in 1970, in recognition of "his broad experience, integrity, modesty and unfailing good humour".

Home and family life were always important to Earle. On August 11, 1945, he and Joyce Rexford were married in Beulah United Church, Ayer's Cliff, Que.

They had two sons: Dean, who married Nicole Richer, and Danny, husband of Cathy Campbell. Earle was especially proud of Dean's daughters, Melanie and Jennifer.

Earle was born and brought up on the farm and farming remained a life-long interest. He was active for many years in the Huntingdon-Ormstown-Beauharnois Holstein Club, the Ormstown Young Farmers, and the Southwest Sale Committee of the Holstein Club.

Retirement hobbies included wood-working, curling and gardening. Family members cherish some of the fine furniture he made, and his roses and gladioli won many prizes at local flower shows and fairs.

With a wide circle of friends within the profession and around the Chateauguay Valley, Earle was respected by his colleagues and influenced many young lives.

Earle died April 12, 2000 at the Montreal General Hospital. St. Paul's United Church in Ormstown was filled for the April 15 funeral service which was conducted by Evelyn Kerr, assisted by Rev. Tad Mitsui. It was a fitting tribute to a life lived with distinction.
