Head-on crash costs three lives

Judith Taylor

Three men, one from Ormstown and two from Valleyfield, were killed in a head-on collision on Route 201 between Ormstown and Valleyfield early Sunday morning.

Police suspect excessive speed and possibly alcohol as factors in the crash which demolished both vehicles. Two fire departments had to be called in with the Jaws of Life to extricate the victims from the wreckage.

Dead are Guy Léveillé, 40, of Ormstown and Denis-Philippe Chehrhi, 36, and Denis Alain Labelle, 33, of Valleyfield.

A spokesman for the Sûreté du Québec said that Léveillé was driving south in his Chrysler New Yorker about 1:45 a.m. Sunday when he lost control of the car on the curve at Landreville, crossing into the other lane and colliding with a Toyota SUV going in the opposite direction. The deaths were confirmed at Ormstown's Barrie Memorial Hospital and the bodies of both drivers were sent to Montreal for autopsies and blood-alcohol tests.

"It was a very bad accident — both vehicles were totally destroyed," said Ormstown Fire Chief Gordon Furey, whose men were called in to help at the scene along with firemen from Ste-Barbe.

A section of the Route 201 remained closed for several hours after the accident as the wreckage was removed and police completed their study of the crash site.
